Introduction to the Revised Rules

The Revised Rules embody two fundamental changes from the former Domestic Commercial Arbitration Rules of Procedure (as amended June 1, 1998):

1. An appeal process; and
2. An “application arbitrator” process.

The scope of confidentiality of arbitration proceedings and arising from the production of documents has been clarified in Rule 27.

In addition there have been some minor revisions to clarify or clean up provisions and to re-organize the sections. Note that under the Rules “day” means a business day and excludes Saturdays, Sundays and statutory holidays.

The Centre contemplates future additions to the Rules such as:

1. Revised Shorter Rules for expedited arbitrations; and
2. New special Rules for specific types of arbitrations, to be developed in consultation with interested stakeholders.

Appeal Process

The Rules allow parties to elect to have a right of appeal to an Appeal Tribunal for parties to an arbitration which the Centre administers.

The important points are:

1. Parties to an arbitration must elect in to the appeal process at the commencement of the arbitration.
2. The appeal tribunal is appointed by the Centre through the Application Arbitrator process discussed below not by the parties. The parties have the right to raise objections in respect of conflicts.
3. An appeal may be brought:
 - a. If the arbitration agreement permits an appeal, on the grounds provided in the arbitration agreement, which may include a question of law, a question of mixed fact and law or a question of fact; or
 - b. On a question of law only on leave of the appeal tribunal. (This is the same standard that is currently set out in the *Arbitration Act*¹).

The Arbitration Act has no provision for an arbitral appeal, therefore to ensure the process is valid parties must elect in at the commencement of an arbitration. The benefits of an arbitral appeal are:

1. The process remains private and confidential.

2. The parties can define the scope of any appeal.
3. The parties have input into the selection of the adjudicators.

To expedite appeals and to deal with creating a panel for an arbitration with more than 2 parties, appointment is by the Centre. Parties will have an opportunity to object on the basis of conflicts.

Application Arbitrator Process

The Rules provide that the “Centre” has certain powers:

1. To change time limits under Rule 3 (3);
2. To appoint an arbitrator Rules 14 (1) and 16; and
3. To hear challenges to an appointment under Rule 17.

The Rules provide that these functions are now carried out by an “Application Arbitrator”. The jurisdiction of an Application Arbitrator is limited to exercising the jurisdiction of the Centre. This process offers the parties a significant advantage in being able to deal with issues privately, more expeditiously and with less expense than the current alternative (filing a petition in Court).

Model Arbitration Clause

Parties who agree to arbitrate under the Centre's Rules, and to have the Centre act as appointing authority and to provide administrative services, may use the following clause in their agreement:

All disputes arising out of or in connection with this agreement, or in respect of any legal relationship associated therewith or derived therefrom, shall be referred to and finally resolved by arbitration administered by the British Columbia International Commercial Arbitration Centre pursuant to its Rules.

The place of arbitration shall be Vancouver, British Columbia, Canada.

Applicability of Rules

Parties should examine the Centre's Rules to ensure that all the provisions are suitable and appropriate in the circumstances. Parties may agree to modify the Rules. Any necessary modifications of the Rules should be added to the model arbitration clause described above.

The Arbitration Act of British Columbia

S. 22 of the *Arbitration Act*² reads:

International Commercial Arbitration Centre Rules

22. (1) Unless the parties to an arbitration otherwise agree, the rules of the British Columbia International Commercial Arbitration Centre for the conduct of domestic commercial arbitrations apply to that arbitration.

(2) Where the rules referred to in subsection (1) are inconsistent with or contrary to the provisions in an enactment governing an arbitration to which this Act applies, the provisions of that enactment prevail.

(3) Where the rules referred to in subsection (1) are inconsistent with or contrary to this Act, this Act prevails.
